ABOUT US

The Good Life Builders

The Good Life Builders supports families across Australia to design and lead personalised disability support through a “service for one” model where a dedicated team is built around one person, governed by those who know them best. We do this through online learning, mentoring from experts, peer support groups and in person events.

Inclusion Tree

Inclusion Tree provides personalised support to people with disability and mental health needs across Australia. Their support is tailored to each person, building on their strengths and experiences, and using approaches that are respectful, practical, and based on what works in real life.

They work alongside people, families, and support teams to understand what is needed and to create solutions that make a real difference in everyday life.

Our partnership

We are delighted to partner to deliver the 2026 Retreat.

Together, Inclusion Tree and The Good Life Builders bring deep, practical experience in working alongside people with disability and families to build, organise, and strengthen personalised support. We share a commitment to keeping the person at the centre and building capable teams.

THE RETREAT

A practical working retreat

Our 2026 retreat aims to give families and support teams the time and guidance to step back from the day-to-day and build more person centred and quality support around their family member with disability so it works well now and into the future and aligns with new NDIS reforms.

Agenda

- Keeping the person at the centre
- Strengthening governance foundations
- Embedding practical operational systems
- Navigating NDIS reform and changing expectations
- Clarifying next direction
- Connecting with others on the same path

Participants

This retreat is for people with disability and their families who want to move beyond one-size-fits-all approaches and explore what truly person-centred support looks like in practice.

WHY YOUR SUPPORT MATTERS

Many people with disability and their families turn to more personalised ways of organising support because traditional services often fail to provide consistent, flexible, and high-quality care.

Family governed approaches have been shown to deliver better outcomes, greater choice and control, stronger relationships, improved quality of life, and more effective use of funding but they require skill, knowledge, and ongoing learning to do well.

This retreat is important because it builds that capability, helping families and teams strengthen how support is designed, managed, and sustained—so it is safer, more reliable, and truly centred on the person.
